

A COMMUNITY BATTLE

Doping starts as early as high school. These athletes are not aware of the complication as their careers take off. Getting the Community involved shouldn't subjugate these athletes to abandonment, put to foster and put into play making decisions. The question doping is it lifelong?

To some doping is a socioeconomic status, while others feel it's the parents and coaches will for the win. By introducing doping mechanism to adolescents roots the perception that drugs enhance performance.

According to institution that ban substances. Penn relays suggest subjects to testing. Being undetected or going unnoticed is a community battle within sports Testing subjects suggests if there is evidence. Evidence suggests reported speed of athletes before competition.

The need however is international standard and a way to comply with international rules; to foster cognitive mental performances from the start. If the athletes are unaware at a young age, 14% may try to get away with doping at bigger competitions. By trying bridges, the gap for lifelong achievements.

Inspired by Vaughn Ross, who showed me pictures of Colorado.

Written by: Sicily Stephens